Enter this French bistro with high ceilings, mustard faux-painted walls, mirrors, great lighting and comfortable seating for a true French dining experience. The feeling of seclusion is terrific as Bistro Vendôme is situated in the back of the main street transporting the guests to Paris. Jennifer Jasinski and Beth Gruitch, owners of Bistro Vendôme (and the popular Rioja across the street,) along with Chef Dana Rodriguez, charm diners with a marvelous menu. Start your meal with the French baguette served in a paper bag and choose from the selection of appetizers: soupe à l'oignon, mussels, foie gras with rhubarb and escargot are among the favorites. Crêpes filled with chicken and the excellent steak tartare bring more options for an appetizer. The beet salad, nicoise, or greens combined with a fried egg and bacon make for great flavors. Herb-roasted chicken comes with a rich cauliflower gratin, and duck confit with risotto start the entrée list with other favorites of steak frites, halibut cheeks, scallops and pork as more choices to entice the diner. A very French wine list is nicely priced. Dessert alert: Bistro Vendôme now features homemade ice creams and sorbets in sensational flavors. Apple cider date, pineapple orange, and caramel green apple ice creams or sorbets of pineapple, cherry tarragon, and blood orange add great choices to the dessert menu. Weekends bring a sensational brunch. With great service and a warm, friendly feel, Bistro Vendôme earns kudos as a great dining spot in Denver. Ooh-la-la, it's nice to be French.
